

"When I speak of nature I'm speaking of the sky... And when I think of the sky, I think of the Scottish sky over Mallaig... Time was there and motion was there....lands forming, seas disappearing, words fragmenting, colors giving birth to burning shapes....."

Jon Schueler, It is magazine, 1960

Jon Schueler

1916-1992

Born in Milwaukee in 1916, Jon Schueler studied at the California School of Fine Arts from 1948-51 where his teachers included Clyfford Still and Richard Diebenkorn. In '51 he moved to New York and, through Still, became immersed in the art world of Mark Rothko, Franz Kline, Jackson Pollock, and Robert Motherwell. Considered one of the younger members of the legendary New York School, he was taken up by both the celebrated dealer Leo Castelli and the Stable Gallery.

In 1957 he discovered Mallaig, a fishing village on the west coast of Scotland, and this landscape informed his work in NY throughout the '60s. In 1970 he returned to Mallaig for 5 years, and then painted there again most summers until his death in 1992.

Essentially an abstract painter, Schueler nonetheless grounded his work in nature --especially in the light and atmosphere of the Scottish west coast. This dimension will be celebrated by both museums and galleries during the 2016 centenary. Schueler's paintings are in the collections of distinguished American and British institutions including the Whitney Museum in New York and the Scottish National Gallery of Modern Art, Edinburgh.
